

Luxury Residential Rooftop Pools That'll Make You Forget You're Still in Manhattan

As New York simmers under a relentless heatwave, the true heroes of summer are finally having their moment: rooftop pools. In a city that thrives on vertical living, these elevated escapes are no longer a mere luxury, they're essential sanctuaries. Rising high above the asphalt jungle, outdoor pools offer relief from the heat and deliver postcard-perfect skyline views, seamless indoor-outdoor living, and the kind of chic ambiance that transforms an ordinary dip into a stylish urban experience. From the Financial District to the Greenpoint waterfront, here's a look at NYC's most enviable new residential outdoor pools redefining summertime in the city.

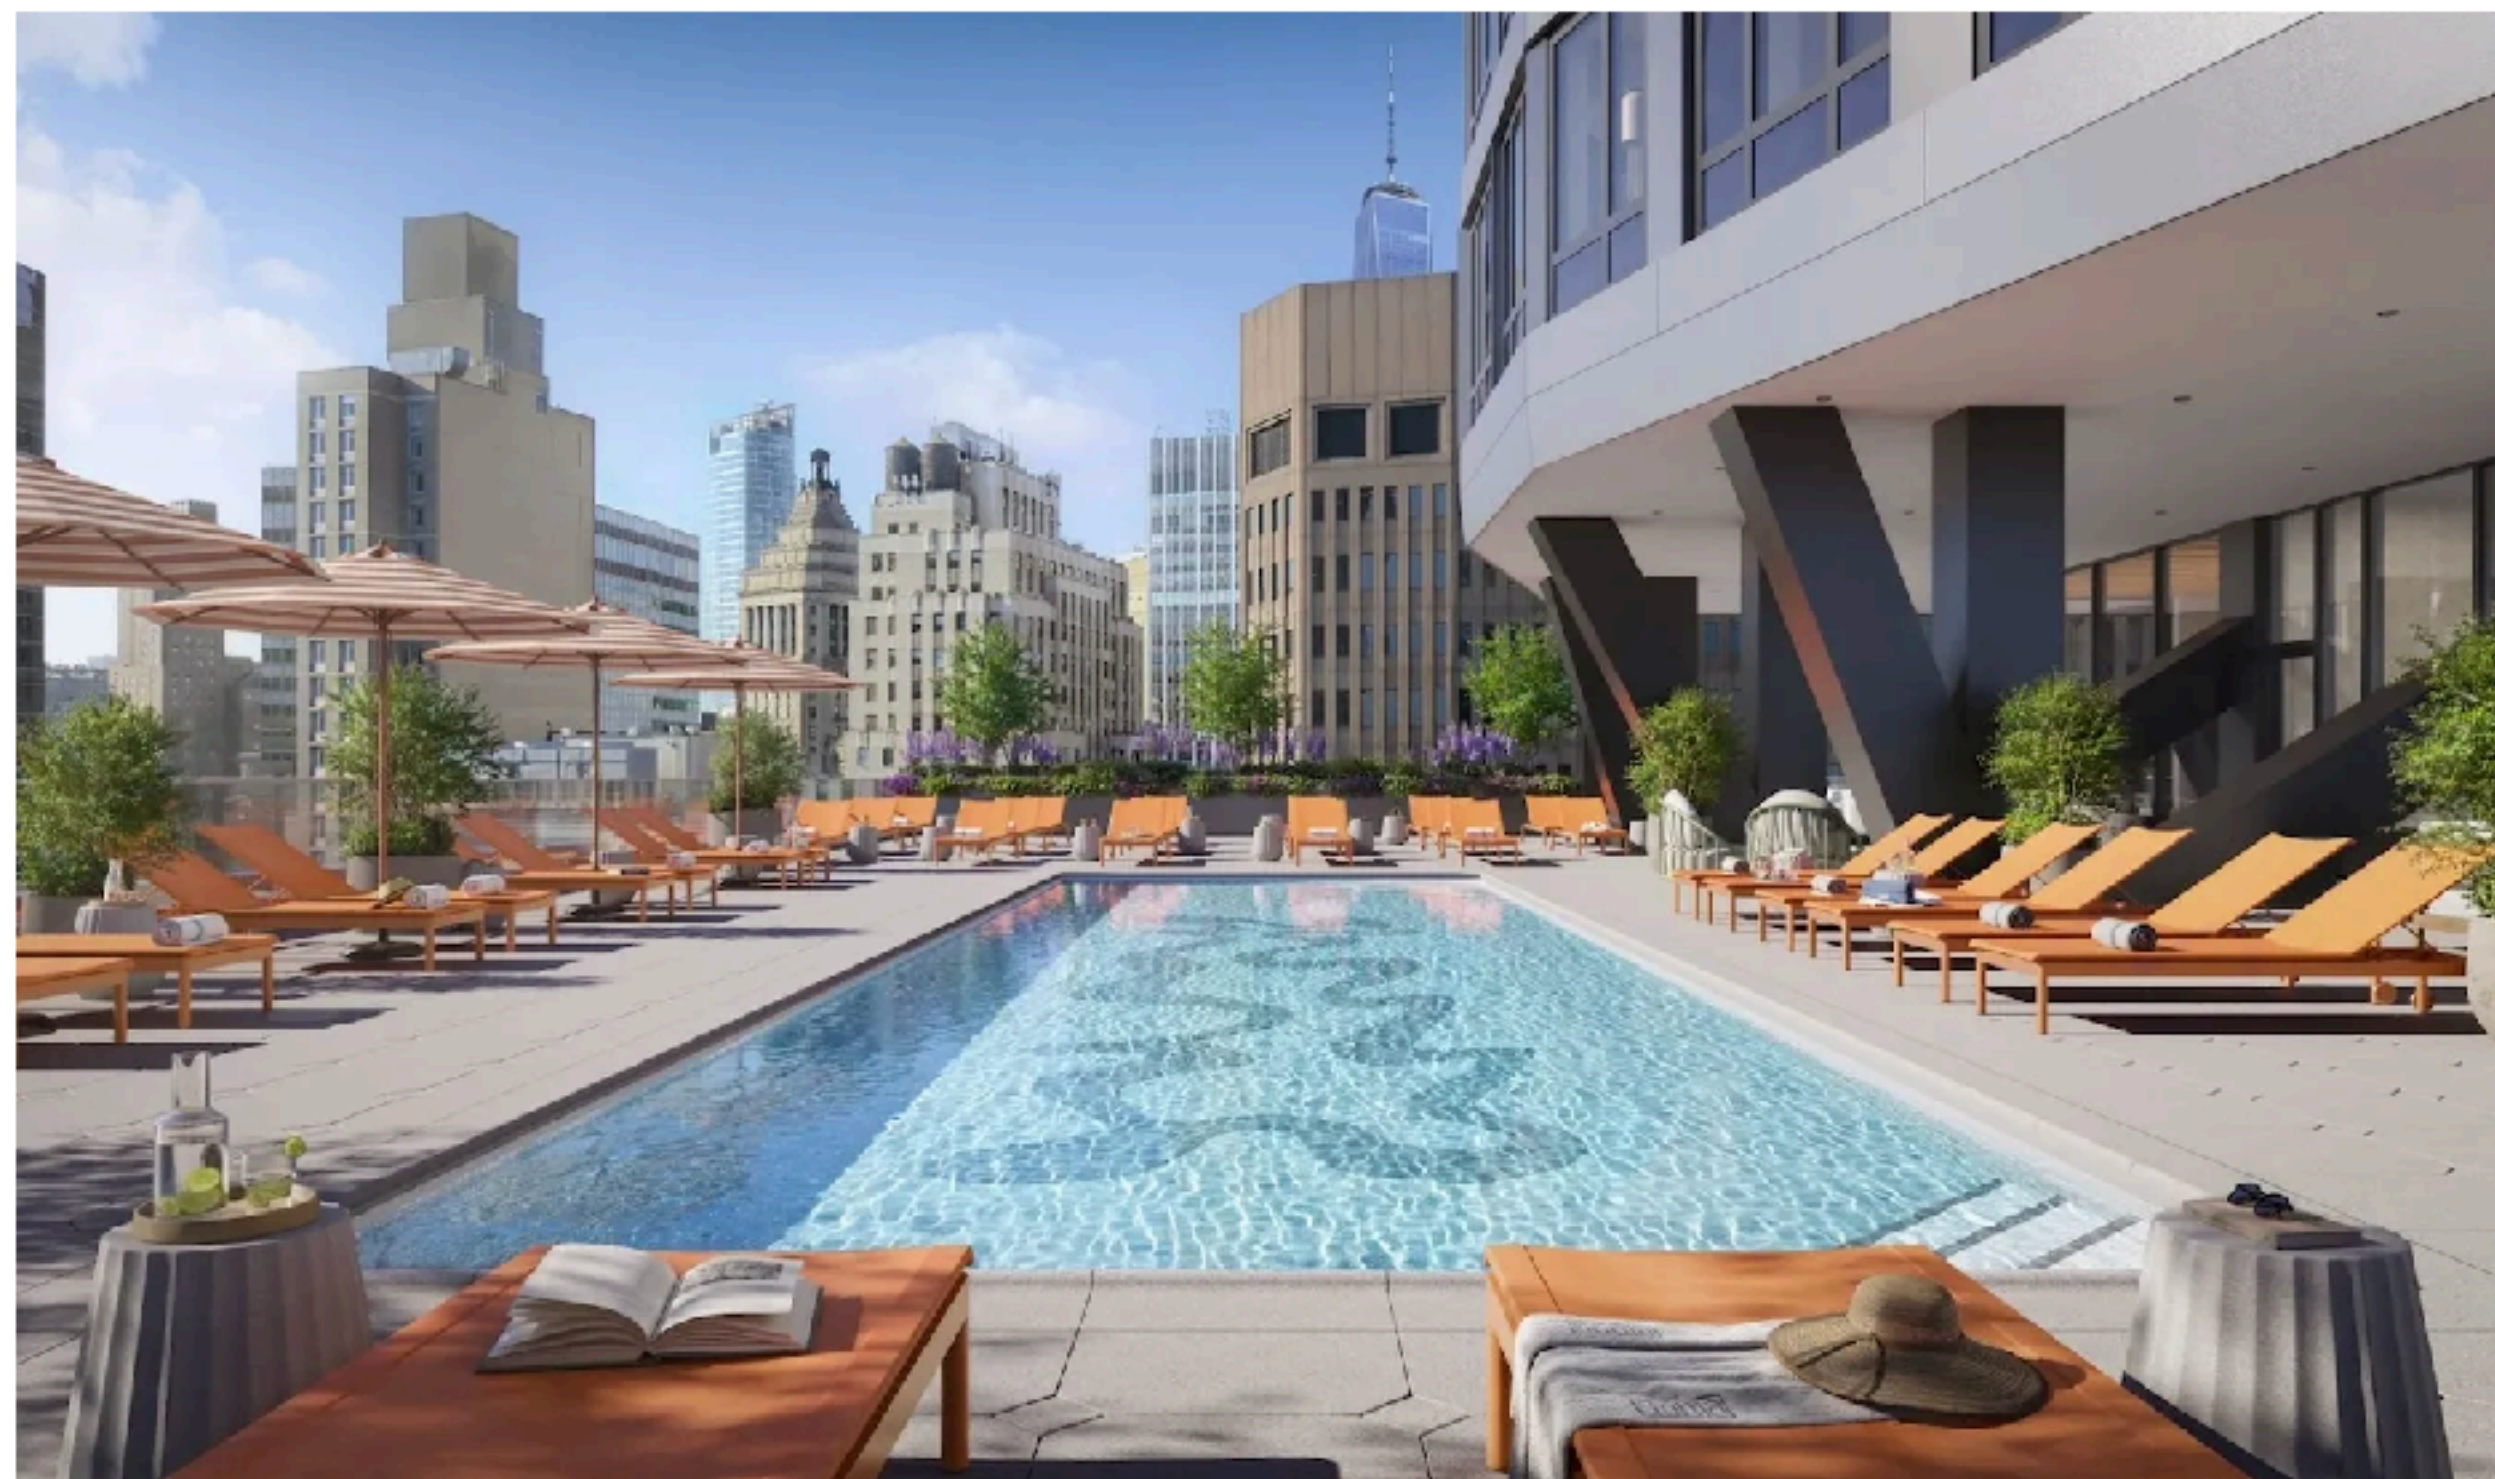

Image Credit: Streetsense

SoMA: Skyline Serenity at an Unprecedented Scale

There's luxury, and then there's SoMA. As the largest office-to-residential conversion in American history, this ambitious reinvention of a Financial District landmark is nothing short of monumental. With over 100,000 square feet of meticulously curated amenities, SoMA embodies the future of high-end urban living. Perched on the 25th floor is the crown jewel of the building's offerings: a rooftop pool that unfolds across a sweeping sun deck, inviting residents to stretch out under the summer sun while surrounded by dramatic Manhattan and East River views.